About the UWA Athletic Training & Sports Medicine Center:

The University of West Alabama Athletic Training & Sports Medicine Center was established in 1986 to organize and formalize efforts toward improvement of athletic health care in west Alabama. The Center provides athletic training services primarily to UWA athletics and the University faculty, staff and students. Secondly, it focuses on providing athletic training services to secondary school athletics and the west Alabama/east Mississippi area. Patients include those with musculoskeletal and orthopaedic concerns ranging from pediatrics to the geriatric population. The Center is staffed primarily by eight full time certified athletic trainers, seven graduate assistant athletic trainers and approximately thirty athletic training students. Support personnel include fellowship trained orthopaedic surgeons and non-surgical orthopaedic physicians, physical therapists, exercise physiologists, biomechanists, health & physical educators, and others in related areas.
